Bright bins in line for gardening gong

A GROUP of Wood Green residents is in the running for a top horticultural prize after turning everyday eyesores in the shape of wheelie bins and dustbins into objects of beauty by incorporating them in a gardening scheme to brighten up their street.

Neighbours along a short stretch of Alexandra Park Road are finalists in the Gardens That Make You Smile category of the national Gardening Against the Odds awards, run by the Conservation Foundation.

The awards honour those who garden in the face of physical, mental and environmental odds.

Susan Bennett, assistant county organiser for the National Gardens Scheme, who lives in St Regis Close, Muswell Hill, nominated the "guerrilla gardeners" after she noticed the little green oasis as she occasionally travelled that way.

"The residents' imaginative use of dustbins and decorated wheelie bins with bright annuals, perennials and climbers made me smile," she said. "It really is uplifting and I'm sure there are many passers-by who are cheered up by it."

The winners of the awards will be judged by a panel of celebrity gardeners and announced at a gala tea party in Syon Park, west London, next April.

Roads reopened after resurfacing work completed

TWO roads in Muswell Hill which had been shut to traffic for seven weeks to enable important roadworks to be undertaken reopened last week.

Stretches of Colney Hatch Lane and Muswell Hill Broadway were closed during the period while the improvement works took place.

The last stretch reopened on Wednesday last week – four days ahead of schedule.

The major works involved completely renewing the surface of Colney Hatch Lane in order to make it safe for passing traffic.

Haringey Council's cabinet member for environment, Stuart McNamara, said: "We are extremely grateful to all the traders, residents and motorists for bearing with us while we carried out this vital and complex work."

"The road has reopened ahead of schedule and in time for Christmas shoppers to enjoy the excellent retail offer in Muswell Hill in the run-up to the festive period."

"These roadworks are part of our commitment to ensure that Haringey has a good-quality road network and continues to be a safe and attractive borough to live and work in, and visit."

Colney Hatch Lane was in a bad state of disrepair before work began, made worse by heavy rainfall.

The council put extra measures in place to minimise disruption while the work was being carried out, including introducing free parking, improved signage and measures to stop nearby roads becoming "rat runs".

SCHOOL GETS GOOD REPORT

Coldfall rated 'outstanding' under new system

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A HARINGEY school has become one of the first to be rated "outstanding" under a new grading system introduced by school standards watchdog Ofsted.

The achievement of Coldfall Primary School, in Coldfall Avenue, Muswell Hill, is all the more remarkable because it is far harder than in the past for schools to be rated "outstanding" since the new framework was introduced in the summer.

Following an inspection, the school received a glowing report which observed that "pupils love coming to school and are excited about learning" and "teachers and their assistants are extremely committed to making sure every pupil achieves the best they possibly can".

The report also praised the "impeccable behaviour" of pupils, the school's "consistently high expectations", the involvement of parents and carers, and the headteacher as an "outstanding leader".

Headteacher Evelyn Davies said: "Our Ofsted report just confirms the amazing team commitment, hard work and inspiration of staff, parents and children. We are, of course, absolutely delighted!"

Ann Waters, Haringey Council's cabinet member for children and families, added: "Ofsted's inspectors were quite rightly full of praise, finding Coldfall to be performing at the highest level possible in all areas – from the quality of its teaching, to the behaviour of its pupils."

"This fantastic achievement tops off a tremendous year for Haringey's schools, which has included impressive exam results at all levels and a number of glowing Ofsted reports."

"It also shows we are making good on our promise to deliver outstanding education for all Haringey children, an ambition we will be celebrating next month at our Outstanding for All awards at Alexandra Palace."

Report puts us among least active in country

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE borough could have more couch potatoes and TV addicts than previously thought, a report published last week has indicated.

The Steps to Solving Inactivity report by UK Active lists Enfield as the tenth worst-performing local authority in the country for people doing the minimum of physical activity.

The figures, which the UK Active organisation has gleaned from government statistics, show that the 36.95 per cent of adults in the borough are not even managing 30 minutes of moderate intensity exercise a week.

The figures reveal that Enfield is the third most inactive borough in London – with only Barking and Dagenham and Newham scoring lower.

Although the figures, released just ahead of the coldest months of the year, might just send the population of the borough reaching for the crisps from underneath a duvet in front of the TV, yoga guru Cathy Underwood says that upping activity does not necessarily mean pounding the pavements in lycra in the snow.

"I think there has been a big push to make people join clubs and that is off-putting for many people, especially if you are self-conscious," she said.

"People often benefit from going to a smaller space, like a church hall or a studio, where the atmosphere is not as intimidating. And maybe an idea would be if it were easier for teachers to have an easier route to access funding for small classes – which could help people who might not necessarily have a lot of money to splash on expensive gym memberships."

Try a different approach: Yoga guru Cathy Underwood

But Enfield Council disputes the suggestion that its residents are lazy and cabinet member for culture, sport and public health Rohini Simbodyal says that helping them get active in their everyday lives is one of the driving forces of the Cycle Enfield project.

"The council recognises that physical activity is much wider than sport and many people do not always have the time or money to participate in paid-for sports activities," she said. "For this reason we successfully bid for £30million for Cycle Enfield, so that people can fit physical activity into their everyday life as a normal part of what they do."

She said the council had also applied successfully for project funding from Sport England's Activation Fund, which the council uses to put on free courses designed to tackle obesity and to get the whole borough healthier.

"This is part of the ongoing development of the borough to make it a more attractive place where walking and cycling become much more common and help to improve health, save residents money and reduce pollution," she added.

Delays warning as tunnel shuts

A SERIES of closures is planned at the Fore Street Tunnel in Edmonton this weekend due to essential maintenance works, beginning on Friday night.

The tunnel will be closed from 10pm on Friday until 5am on Monday. Transport for London estimates that it will be closed again three times between now and spring next year.

Drivers using roads near the North Circular, including the Great Cambridge, Fore Street, Angel Road, and Ferry Road, may find them extremely congested and are advised to find alternative routes, if possible, or allow for a longer travel time than usual.

Drivers using the North Circular between Henlys Corner and the M11 are also advised to allow additional travel time, while those diverting via the M25 should expect their journey to take 45 minutes longer. If they remain on the A406, the delay could be up to an hour.

Anybody needing to get to North Middlesex Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton, should also allow for possible delays to their journey.

All buses travelling through Edmonton and Tottenham over the weekend may be diverted and some stops may be relocated.

The tunnel is being refurbished as part of ongoing maintenance work to manage water seepage and replace damaged electrical equipment.

Improvements to the lighting can be also be expected, making the tunnel safer and more energy-efficient.

Conference tackles the problem of child poverty

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

WITH nearly half of children in one part of the borough living in poverty, council bosses this week called together the best and brightest in the sector in a bid to tackle the growing problem.

A special conference held to discuss the issue at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield, on Monday heard from Helen Beresford, from the charity 4Children.

She told the assembled council chiefs, charity bosses and parent groups that in Edmonton alone 43 per cent of children were living in poverty, after housing costs have been taken into consideration, in 2013.

She added: "Poverty shortens lives. If a child lives in poverty, they are three times more likely to suffer from mental health problems. Living in damp, cold houses means they are more likely to suffer from respiratory problems such as asthma. And they are at risk of developing diabetes."

She explained that of the 3.5 million children living in poverty in the UK, two thirds of them have at least one parent in work, which she said her charity had found was a growing trend due to wage stagnation coupled with inflation.

Speaking to the Advertiser during a short break in the conference, council leader Doug Taylor said the local authority had put on the conference because "poverty is the most critical determinant of public health."

"If child poverty increases, there is a long-term impact on public health and there is a long-term impact on an individual's life chances."

"The council will work with the voluntary sector and all the agencies in how we can break the cycle."

The council produced a strategy to tackle child poverty in 2011 and is hoping that the outcomes of the conference will feed into formulating a new strategy.

But Mr Taylor explained: "We have to be realistic about what the council can do – as Dr Shahed Ahmad, one of the speakers explained, smoking is something the council can help people cut down on – which has an impact on health as well as on how much disposable income a family has."

Explaining how the local authority was in some ways hampered by being forced to "do more with less", he said that cuts in the amount of government grant it received had reduced the council's budget by 10 per cent.

"We aren't able to afford the initial interventions costs – which in the long term costs us

Theatre duo boost telethon funds

A MOTHER and daughter team from an inclusive theatre company raised more than £100 for Children in Need by hunting down hidden antique treasures.

Actress Emma Cambridge, who starred in Alice on the Underground at Chickenshed, in Chase Side, Southgate, last month and her mother Susan Jamson, head of communications at the theatre, were asked to take part in a special edition of antiques series Bargain Hunt broadcast last Friday on BBC1.

After sailing through an audition, the duo found their flair for fine antiques and were so absorbed in the task of finding treasures in the antique fair they went to as part of the filming in the summer that they lost the camera crew who were trailing them.

Chickenshed was chosen to take part as it is one of the charities which benefits from the Children in Need telethon.

"I was very scared before we took part," Susan admitted to the Advertiser. "I didn't know anything about antiques and my 98-year-old father, who does know a lot about these things, said, 'Oh no, you're not going on, that are you?'"

"But they assign you an expert who helps you along and it became like a history lesson – I found it really interesting. When you hear the history of something, it makes you look at that thing very differently."

And, when the pair visited the auction house in Malvern, in Worcestershire, a team from the theatre company went with them.

"They really cheered us on and got into the spirit of things," said Susan. "It wasn't just about winning because it was for such a good cause."

Emma and Susan managed to pip their rival team at the post after netting a profit of £148 for Children in Need.

But Susan admitted that spending time with their rivals was one of the most "inspirational" aspects of the programme.

"The other team were from a charity called Bad Bikes youth project, which uses biking to help young people turn their lives around," she added.

And because every item the pair sold made a profit, Emma and Susan were awarded a golden gavel from the show, which currently has pride of place in Susan's home as "no one in Chickenshed would be quite as excited about it as I am".

Teen calls for sex education in all schools

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A TEENAGER is taking on the might of British reserve by backing a petition to make sex education compulsory in all schools.

Yas Necati, from Palmers Green, is a full-time writer and activist, who has leant her support to a petition on campaigns website Change.org that calls on all schools in the country to teach pupils about sex and relationships, regardless of whether they are grant-maintained religious schools, free schools or academies.

The alliance of activists and campaigners lobbying the government on the issue includes the Everyday Sexism Project as well as the End Violence Against Women coalition.

Yas, 18, earned her campaigning stripes in 2013 when she publicly called on Michael Gove, the then education secretary, to update the guidance on sex and relationships education taught in schools.

Last year she won assurances from the government that the curriculum would be looked at again – and now she has added her weight to growing demands that all children, even in religious schools, receive information about sexual consent and internet pornography.

"I feel passionately that SRE should be made compulsory in all schools," Yas told the Advertiser. "In an age of digital media we are growing up with distorted ideas of sex."

"The average age of the first time someone accesses internet pornography is eight or nine. We need to prepare young people for that."

"It's going to happen, whether parents want it to or not. Young people need to know that those bodies are not real, that those relationships are not real."

With sexualised images being used to sell everything from shower gel to yoghurt, Yas says that young people need education that will mitigate the damaging impact of a hyper-sexual society.

"In some sense it is hard because people come to school from all kinds of religious and faith backgrounds and, of course, you have to respect that – but everyone needs to be equipped to deal with our very

Campaigning: Yas Necati, 18, is supporting a call for all schools to provide sex and relationships education sexualised world, no matter what background they come from."

The Liberal Democrats have already signed a pledge to make SRE compulsory in schools and Yas and the other campaigners are hoping to win cross-party support for the petition, which has so far attracted more than 33,000 signatures.

Enfield Southgate MP David Burrows applauded his young constituent's mettle. However, as a committed Christian, he said making SRE mandatory was not the best way forward.

"My concern about a compulsory requirement is who is going to be responsible for it?" he said. "It should not be the state. Parents, governors and teachers need to take the lead in making sure we have a good SRE education provision."

The father-of-six added that parents should be involved in the process – but with the emphasis on "opting-in" rather than withdrawing their children from the classes.

"Parents do need to be involved in understanding what their children are being taught and, as regards internet pornography, teaching about that should not be left down to teachers," he said. "It needs to be taught at home by parents as well."

Store set to shut after just 13 months

By Louise McCudden

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

SUPERMARKET giant Morrisons is to shut its Enfield Town M Local convenience store – just 13 months after it opened.

The lease on the mini-supermarket's premises in Church Street expires at the end of the month and the high street retailer has decided not to renew it.

Morrisons says there will be no job losses as staff will be relocated to its other M Local convenience store in the town, in Colman Parade.

The closure has come as a blow because there are already several vacant shops premises nearby and another empty site in Enfield Town isn't what existing traders want in the run-up to the Christmas rush.

Mark Rudling, town centre manager for the Enfield Town Business and Retail Association, said: "I'm disappointed that it has decided to close after such a short time. I understand they won't be losing any jobs, so that's good, but it's still disappointing to have such a big empty space in Enfield Town, especially in the run-up to Christmas."

In common with the rest of the big four supermarket chains, Morrisons has struggled to keep its market share in the face of stiff competition from discount rivals, such as Aldi and Lidl, as well as the emergence of online shopping.

A Morrisons spokeswoman said:

"All our colleagues are moving to our store down the road in Colman Parade or other convenience stores nearby. Just like other retailers, we modify our estate based on an evaluation of properties, their remaining lease and whether they remain commercially viable."

However, Conservative councillor Joanne Laban said there was an above average number of vacant units in Enfield Town and suggested the council needed to look at business rates as they were affecting well-known brands as well as small independent stores.

She added: "This also shows why it was a mistake of the Labour council not to invest money from the mayor's regeneration fund to revitalise Enfield Town when the fund was created after the riots."

"The council now has an economic development department, so I suggest they use it to stop more retailers leaving and creating more vacant shops on the high street and to try and find retailers to fill the vacant shops."

But she was accused by Labour councillor Alan Sitkin, cabinet member for economic development, of having a "superficial" understanding of the situation.

He said it was "regrettable" that the Morrisons store was closing, but other big-name chains were suffering too and this reflected a national economic trend.

"There's a deeper analysis of it that we're doing, of which Joanne Laban knows nothing. Her economic understanding is very superficial," he said.

"What we are doing is creating a greater diversity of shops in Enfield. At the moment, there are too many similar

Shutting up shop: The Morrisons Church Street shop branch is closing shops competing with one another when what we want is them complementing each other."

"Where is the comedy club? Where are the nightclubs? Where are the professional services? If you were born and raised in Enfield, you know that there used to be things to do here. The Tories shut them down and turned it into a ghost town."

Alex hits Brazilian heights to raise funds for charity

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN ART teacher for children with special educational needs has overcome vertigo and raised thousands of pounds for charity in the process.

Alex Pierides, 33, of Millers Green Close, Enfield, had been training hard for five months and on Monday he managed to climb three of the highest peaks in Brazil in the space of 12 hours – Pedra Da Gávea (840m), Dois Irmãos (550m) and Corcovado (710m).

Using the hills and wide open spaces in Trent Park, Cockfosters, for interval and gradient running as well as power walks, the experienced marathon runner was able to finesse his skills so that when he spoke to the Advertiser yesterday morning after his epic mountain challenge he was able to shrug off aches and pains.

"I am a little sore," he admitted after finishing the challenge at the iconic statue of Christ the Redeemer atop Corcovado in Rio de Janeiro – but said that the minor discomfort fell into insignificance compared with the "amazing" feeling he had once he completed the three-peak challenge.

"It was incredible, going up towards the summit and seeing the statue of Christ the redeemer," said Alex. "It is just incredible, just beautiful."

Alex added that so far he has managed to raise £2,250 for the Street Child World

Thumbs up: Alex Pierides with football star Gilberto Silva

Cup – and he revealed that he had a lot of fun raising the thousands of pounds in between intense training sessions.

"We have done a Brazilian quiz night, car boot sale and a Greek Cypriot dinner party," he said.

His partner in crime and pain, who trained with him, Francesca Marengi, is the fundraising manager for the charity and also took part in the Brazilian challenge.

She explained that the charity, which was set up in 2009 and aims to help raise awareness about the plight of street children through the power of football and sport, held a world cup for street children with kids from 19 countries taking part in a football tournament in Rio last April.

She added that the charity's ambassador, former Arsenal star and former Enfield resident Gilberto Silva, was on hand to present medals to all those who completed the challenge.

Hoping: Tony Claydon is leading a campaign for an indoor place in Whitewebbs Park where people can chat over a cup of coffee

Disgraceful treatment of Whitewebbs

THE article about Whitewebbs café (November 12) took me back 12 years. Shortly after the café burnt down I joined six other people, including our then MP Joan Ryan, to meet the mayor and his financial assistant in the mayor's office at the civic centre.

We were there to discuss the rebuilding of the cafeteria. We came away heartened by promises to seriously consider the matter in the following year's budget.

Nothing happened. After all these years, we now realise the council had no intention of rebuilding.

Whitewebbs is a festering sore in the council's side. While millions have been spent at Forty Hall, Whitewebbs has been disgracefully neglected – the poor relation of the borough.

The surface of the bridal path is deep-rutted and dangerous for horses. The side railing has collapsed in many places and left where it fell.

The pond is silting up. Fallen trees block the main paths through the woods, making it difficult for old people to walk there.

It is truly disgraceful. Whitewebbs can be so beautiful.

To the new petitioners for rebuilding the café I say good luck, but don't hold your breath. I honestly believe it is not going to happen. I would dearly love to be proved wrong.

Garden full of memories

HAVING had relatives visit, they kindly brought with them copies of the Advertiser passed to them by parents residing in Enfield.

I was born at 12 Allens Road, Ponders End, then my grandparents' home. This was in 1929. In 1951, my parents moved to 11 Lee View, Enfield. My last address in Enfield, then married, was Morley Hill, where my husband and I moved from in 2003.

So I am an Enfieldian through and through. Reading the article regarding a memorial garden on the site of The Two Brewers (October 1) brought back memories.

Of course, I do not remember it being bombed in 1940 as I was barely a year old, but I remember as a young child standing and watching them dig the site out some years later and seeing crates of beer untouched by the bomb.

Even then I was fascinated by old objects and wondered what I could get my hands on – nothing, of course, as I was far too young.

Once the site was cleared, that awful advertising hoarding was erected. Even then I thought something better should have been made of the area left.

I am now 75 years old and finally, after all these years, the people of Ponders End have voted for a memorial garden. How wonderful. Let's hope this stops rubbish from being left there.

It would be nice if a plaque could be erected with the names of the men who died that night.

I would love to come and see the garden, but that will not be possible because of a stroke. No doubt my relatives will take some photos to show me.

Thanks for tickets to a brilliant musical

HAVING been lucky enough to win a pair of tickets to the show ONCE, I would like to thank you for the opportunity of being so together with my daughter, who accompanied me.

I would agree with all that was printed (September 3) on the supreme quality of it in all aspects.

The fact that all the music was played on guitars, mandolins, piano accordion, piano and drums was absolutely brilliant. The piano was played exquisitely by the female lead, who is Czech-born with a brilliant tonal voice that would melt anyone's heart, as your article implied.

The male lead, who is Irish, sang and played guitar with power and full-on emotion.

Both made it all a completely bitter-sweet story, as said.

The female lead constantly attempted to convince the male lead that his own music and lyrics really were something, giving him confidence and love for her.

Sad to relate, as in some affairs of the heart, she encouraged him to go to his first love in New York and continue his new-found career. This took courage, and how.

Being keen on practically all forms of music, I found the fact that it was performed by string instruments an entirely new experience for an on-stage musical.

Bowlers want parks locked during night

THE much put-upon members of Durants Park Bowls Club were treated to a surprise when they turned up at the clubhouse for their annual meeting.

The club's seven-foot-high perimeter hedge had been set alight at three places during the night and was still smouldering. This was the latest in a series of setbacks the club has suffered over the past couple of years.

It began when a thief went to the trouble of dislodging an iron grill so he could break into the clubhouse through the kitchen window, damaging several kitchen tiles in the process. He got away with the cash register, which contained only small-value coins.

A short time later, somebody tried to gain access to our equipment shed by using a crowbar to jammy the door open. This venture was unsuccessful, but it resulted in a lot of damage to the walls of the shed. In response the club obtained a security door for the shed.

Next, while playing bowls, our members, who have an average age of about 70 years, were subjected to a spate of youths throwing objects over the perimeter hedge at them. These objects included sticks and rocks.

In July, thieves entered our premises and launched a determined assault on the equipment shed. They made a hole in the wall of the shed sufficiently large for a child to squeeze through and were able to open the security door from the inside. They made off with both our petrol-driven lawnmowers, a scarifier and a wheelbarrow.

The value of the items stolen totalled about £5,000. In addition to the enormous costs and inconvenience, these thefts have made it difficult for the club to obtain contents insurance in future.

You will not be surprised to learn that the membership of Durants Park Bowls Club disagree with any move towards keeping Enfield parks open overnight. Indeed, we would support more security in the parks during twilight hours.

Graham Horscroft
Dell Road, Enfield

At most council meetings few members of the public attend – but on October 29 at the overview and scrutiny committee, where we were discussing the Labour council's decision to not lock parks at night, the conference room at the Civic Centre was full.

Council launches public What's the future for libraries?

By Louise McCudden

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

FEARS have been raised that a public consultation by the council on proposals to improve the borough's library services could be a precursor to possible closures.

The consultation – to gather the views of Enfield residents on a range of options including “flagship libraries” – was launched last week, but some members of the public have expressed concerns while Conservative councillors have warned of possible future service cuts.

The council was quick to reassure residents that their views would be listened to throughout the process and whichever approach was decided upon next year it would not ultimately lead to cuts or closures.

However, such a possibility was not ruled out. In some regions, including Birmingham, “flagship libraries” have led to a drop in activity for smaller libraries and culminated in closures.

The options floated in the consultation, which is available via the council website, include a number of libraries remaining open seven days a week and key improvements to digital services such as increased wi-fi capacity and greater computer access.

The council currently receives more than 1.4 million online visits to its digital library and has an ever-growing need to provide computers for residents who do not have internet access at home and have to complete job or benefit applications, pay their council tax and manage other bills.

An expansion of library wi-fi capacity is likely to be a popular consultation on 'flagships' scheme

Flagship: The refurbished Enfield Town library, which opened in March 2010 option with residents. Other suggestions include digital hub zones specifically created for online learning and the provision of homework clubs and job clubs.

The consultation comes as residents across the borough have shown concerns about the quality of existing library services. Some expressed caution about the perceived prioritisation of "flagship libraries" over fixing the current system.

A library regular Henry Jacobs, 68, who lives in Elm-croft Avenue, Edmonton, said: "I'm a supporter of anything that improves the libraries for readers and other users. The idea of flagship libraries sounds all very nice, but they haven't resolved the problems they've got. There's been equipment out of order for a year. There was a self-service kiosk in Edmonton Green Library which had been out of order for a year.

"I don't want to be entirely negative. Library services are one of the gems of the borough. I love the libraries, but I've been very frustrated by the IT problems. They are getting to grips with it all now though. Things have been going in the right direction.

Lee David-Sanders, the Conservatives' spokesman for libraries on Enfield Council, said: "We welcome the ways the council is looking to invest in library hubs as long as it doesn't affect existing services.

"What we wouldn't want to see is cuts or closures impact-ing vulnerable people, especially those who don't have internet access at home."

"There is a risk of that, for example in the east of the borough where there are high levels of poverty. When we were in power, we were criticised when we moved libraries. Labour was very vocal about the risk of closures."

Cabinet member for education, children's services and protection Ayfer Orhan said: "Enfield's community is changing and our libraries need to change to reflect the needs of our community, including the young, elderly and those with a different range of abilities now and in the future.

"We have developed an ambitious vision and set of proposals that present an exciting future for libraries and enhances our comprehensive library service.

"We now want to get the views of local people, both library users and non-library users, to help us shape new and exciting ways to deliver our library service before any decisions are made.

"No decisions have been made yet on the type of library or the location of libraries. The final decision on the library service, location and different types of libraries will be made in February or March next year following the conclusion of this consultation."

After 70 years, Arctic Convoy hero is honoured

Honoured: Frederick Thomson receives his medal from Captain Oleg Kornienko

THE Russian embassy honoured a World War II veteran at a special ceremony in Enfield on Saturday for his part on the Arctic Convoys which transported crucial supplies to the east.

Former Enfield resident Frederick Thomson, 93, was presented with the Ushakov medal by Russian defence attache Captain Oleg Kornienko as a symbol of his country's gratitude.

The presentation took place around the Arctic Convoy Memorial, outside Enfield Civic Centre, in Silver Street, which was given to people of the borough by surviving Arctic Convoy members.

Mr Thomson served as a signalman on merchant ships as they crossed the North Atlantic to supply starving Russians with food and blankets as well as ammunition.

Thousands died in the icy waters as they were attacked by enemy ships. Winston Churchill once described it as "the worst journey in the world".

Mr Thomson said: "I am thrilled, delighted and honoured."

The Ushakov medal takes its name from Admiral Fyodor Ushakov, who famously never lost a battle, and is presented to those who have shown exemplary courage in wartime or peacetime. Following the presentation there was a thanksgiving and remembrance ceremony.

Enfield mayor Ali Bakir, said: "It is a huge honour to host this event. The Arctic memorial was given to the borough through the efforts of past veterans, one of whom was an Enfield mayor Stanley Carter."

Conservative councillor Nick Dines, said: "My grandad served on the HMS Duke of York and was part of the Arctic Convoy, taking part in the Battle of the North Cape. Like many men of his generation, he kept to himself what he saw and the horrific conditions he must have endured."

"We should all be proud that Enfield is home to a permanent memorial for the Arctic Convoy, enabling us to give thanks to those who lost their lives so that others could live in freedom."

Three fined after pleading guilty to blue badge fraud

A MOTHER who fraudulently used her disabled son's blue badge to park while he was at school has been fined.

Irene Makukidze, of Dendridge Close, Enfield, pleaded guilty in writing to Tottenham Magistrates' Court to misusing the badge to park in a pay-and-display bay in Hertford Road on July 7 after being caught by enforcement officers.

Magistrates fined her £165 and ordered her to pay £225 costs and a £20 victim surcharge.

She was one of three blue badge fraudsters who appeared before magistrates on the same day.

Ozdes Gullu, of Broadlands Avenue, Enfield

Highway, also pleaded guilty in writing and was fined £135 and ordered to pay £225 costs and a £20 victim surcharge after being caught parking illegally on June 17.

Mehmet Kurt pleaded guilty in person and was fined £40 and ordered to pay £40 costs and a victim surcharge of £20 after being caught on June 17.

All three motorists could have bought a pay-and-display ticket for an hour in Hertford Road at a cost of £1.20.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for environment and community safety, Chris Bond, said: "We do not tolerate blue badge fraud in Enfield and we prosecute everyone we find committing this crime. The message to people who think they can dodge parking charges by using someone else's blue badge is, 'You can't, we will find you, we will prosecute you and you will end up paying an exorbitant cost for what is in essence a criminally bad decision'.

"I am sure that, when these people reflect on what they have done, they will realise the error of their ways and will never be tempted to try this again. I sincerely hope that other people tempted to commit blue badge fraud learn the same lesson and are dissuaded from trying a similar con."

Hospital tests new way to tackle child eczema

By Louise McCudden

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

CHASE Farm will be one of five hospitals across England to take part in a potentially groundbreaking pilot study of child eczema over the next year.

The dry-skin condition affects one in five children and one in 12 adults, causing irritation of the skin, itchiness, flaking and, in severe cases, bleeding and encrustation.

Silk is believed to contain certain antimicrobial properties which could help heal the damaged skin, but no major trials have been carried out yet.

A new study, which is being funded by the National Institute for Health Research and run by Nottingham University, will compare children who suffer from eczema to ascertain whether wearing silk undergarments has any notable impact on their condition.

Chase Farm, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, is on the lookout for children aged one to 15 with moderate to severe eczema to take part in the research. The youngsters will be divided into two groups.

One will start wearing the silk garments immediately, the other will be using them after six months.

All travel expenses to the clinic appointments can be reimbursed. The results are expected to be published in June 2016.

Juliet Guinness, clinical trial nurse at the Royal Free London NHS Foundation Trust, which runs Chase Farm, said: "We need to recruit another 30 children for the trial at our centre at Chase Farm and we are sure there are local children suffering from eczema who could be eligible to take part.

"Our recruits need to be between the ages of one and 15 years with moderate to severe eczema.

"If eligible, they will be asked to wear the garments either from the start of their trial period or after six months.

"Families will need to complete a weekly questionnaire about the child's condition and how often they are wearing the clothing and attend our clinic at Chase Farm on four occasions to assess the skin condition."

Lorna Reith, chief executive of Healthwatch Enfield, said: "We definitely encourage people to take part. It's not an invasive study where children would need to take medicines. It's just asking them to wear special clothing.

"If it works, it will be beneficial to thousands of children and there's no danger to them if it doesn't.

"It is likely that hundreds of children in Enfield suffer from eczema and this study could ultimately be beneficial to them all."

A TRADING standards probe into the dangers of mobile phone parts on sale in Enfield has been launched after thousands of dangerous pieces of equipment were seized in a raid on one company's headquarters.

Numerous unsafe devices had previously been found by council officers in hardware shops across the borough – and it was thought that the equipment had been supplied by a mobile phone accessories wholesaler based in the borough.

On November 6, council officers raided the headquarters of the company suspected of supplying the devices.

As many as 1,133 phone covers were seized on suspicion of being counterfeit and 111 travel adaptors were seized and proved to be dangerous because their design exposed live parts which could deliver a potentially fatal electric shock.

The company, which cannot be named for legal reasons, is now subject to a criminal investigation.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for environment and community safety Chris Bond said: "Mobile phone accessories are often expensive

Firm faces probe as unsafe phone parts are seized and young people will always look for a bargain, especially where their mobile phones are concerned.

"Cheap mobile phone chargers are a known fire risk and it is utterly unacceptable for traders to be distributing potentially lethal chargers and endangering the lives of residents.

"I'd urge people to check any electrical equipment they buy meets the required European Union standards to ensure that they are not risking their lives by using some dodgy counterfeits.

"The council will continue to take steps to protect the public from potential harm at the hands of disreputable traders who are keen to make a quick buck."

Editorial Complaints Policy

We take all complaints about editorial content seriously and are committed to abiding by the Independent Press Standards Organisation (IPSO) rules and regulations and the Editors' Code of Practice that IPSO enforces (the "Editors' Code").

1. What is a complaint?

When making a complaint, you must clearly state that your complaint is a formal complaint under this policy.

2. What does this policy cover?

This policy only applies to complaints about breaches of the Editors' Code in editorial content in our printed publications or on electronic services such as websites and apps, including text, pictures, video, audio/visual and interactive content, and which are either published or targeted at an audience in the UK, Channel Islands and Isle of Man. It does not cover:

- complaints about TV and radio services (which are regulated by Ofcom, ATVOD and/or the BBC Trust)
- complaints about advertising (as these are regulated by the Advertising Standards Authority);
- concerns about matters of taste/decentcy and due impartiality;
- complaints about books;
- complaints about "user-generated content" (i.e. material on our websites that was not posted by us or on our behalf which we have not reviewed or moderated);
- complaints about online material on sites which we do not own and which are not under our control;
- at our discretion, legal or contractual matters which are dealt with more appropriately by the courts or tribunals or elsewhere.

3. How to complain

Complaints should be made in writing, either by email to the Editor: Mick Fentis, mickfentis@yellowad.co.uk or by post to Mick Fentis, editor Yellow Advertiser, Acorn House, Great Oaks, Basildon, Essex, SS14 1AH.

Complaints will only be accepted within four months of the date of the behaviour or first publication of the article that you are complaining about. If at the time you submit your complaint, the article remains accessible on a website or other electronic service operated by us however, complaints may be accepted up to 12 months from the date of the behaviour or first publication of the article you are complaining about, provided it is still possible to investigate the complaint fairly given the period of time which has elapsed.

Complaints must include:

- a copy of the article in question, or a link to the relevant webpage or a web address, if the complaint is about published material (or reference to the publication title, issue date, page and article title if a copy is unavailable);
- a written explanation of your concerns with reference to the Editors' Code;
- any other documents that will help us assess your complaint.

Complaints received without this essential information cannot be considered. We may seek further details after your initial contact. If you cannot provide the requested information we may be unable to consider your complaint.

We reserve the right to reject, without further investigation, complaints that show no breach of the Editors' Code, or those which are vexatious and/or disproportionate, or those which are without justification (such as an attempt to argue a point of view or to lobby).

We may also decline to consider complaints from third parties not directly affected by the alleged breach of the Editors' Code. When considering whether to accept such a complaint, the position of the party most closely involved will be taken into account.*

4. What happens to your complaint?

The complaints process is free of charge irrespective of the outcome.

We aim to acknowledge your complaint within 5 working days of receipt. You agree to respond promptly to any request for further information.

If we receive multiple complaints about the same issue we may make one response to all.

We will respond to complaints within 28 days of receiving everything we need from you to allow us to investigate your complaint. If we fail to meet this timescale, you can take your complaint to IPSO.

We will always treat you courteously and with respect. We expect the same from you. We may decline to consider a complaint which is abusive or gratuitously offensive.

5. Complaint to IPSO on exhaustion of our complaints procedure

If you are unhappy with our final response to your complaint you may complain to IPSO (<http://www.ipso.co.uk>). IPSO offers without charge a complaints handling service to the public in cases where there has been a disagreement between a complainant and us about whether the Editors' Code has been breached. We will be asked to confirm that our complaints procedure has been exhausted and will do so in writing.*

6. Policy Changes

We reserve the right to amend this policy as required. We will publish the current policy on our website. Your complaint will be considered against the published policy on the date of receipt of your complaint.

* Please note third party complaints: IPSO may, but is not obliged to, consider complaints from a third party who has been personally and directly affected by the alleged breach of the Editors' Code or by where an alleged breach of the Editors' Code is significant and there is substantial public interest in IPSO considering the complaint, from a representative group affected by the alleged breach or (i) from a third party seeking to correct a significant inaccuracy of published information, in which case the position of the party most closely involved should be taken into account.

* Please note third party complaints: IPSO may, but is not obliged to, consider complaints from a third party who has been personally and directly affected by the alleged breach of the Editors' Code or by where an alleged breach of the Editors' Code is significant and there is substantial public interest in IPSO considering the complaint, from a representative group affected by the alleged breach or (i) from a third party seeking to correct a significant inaccuracy of published information, in which case the position of the party most closely involved should be taken into account.

Santas in fun run

MINCE pies, eggnog and endless tins of chocolates can start to take their toll on waistlines as the festive period approaches.

And, no matter how much we all need a little insulation in the winter months, one charity is proposing a festive way to fend off the annual Christmas expansion.

The Nightingale Cancer Hospice, in the Nightingale Cancer Support Centre in Lancaster Road, Enfield, is organising a Santa run through Trent Park, aiming to raise as well as heart rates throughout the borough.

Lesia Barker, the charity's fundraising manager, told the Advertiser that people can run, walk, jog or crawl over the course at the park in Cockfosters.

"We now have a lot of younger families coming to the hospice," she said, "and we wanted to put something festive on that the whole family could get involved in."

"Families should be together at Christmas and this run is a great way to have some festive fun."

Sticking with the family theme, Lesia said that people can take part in either a one-kilometre buggy dash or a five-kilometre fun run.

"You don't need a buggy to take part in the short dash," she said. "You can do it with children, or just on your own."

And while Santa hats will not be obligatory, Lesia said that festive cheer in the form of Santa outfits, elf costumes or even a simple tinsel corset would be enthusiastically welcomed.

"Everyone, of course, will get a free Santa hat and a hot drink for taking part, and people can buy a Santa outfit from our website when they book a place in the run online," she added.

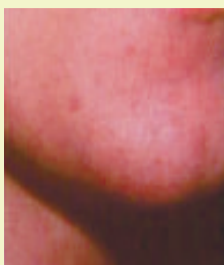

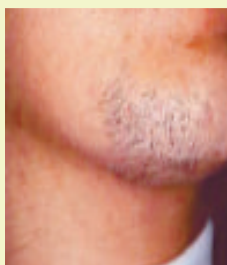

The festivities will start from the Cockfosters entrance to Trent Park on Sunday, November 30, with the one-kilometre dash beginning at 10.40am and the five-kilometre runners setting off at 11.15am.

Lost soldier's grave 'found' 69 years on

By Koos Couvée

koos.couvee@nlhnews.co.uk

A DUTCH World War II researcher claims he has found the final resting place of a Royal Marine from Enfield who went missing in fierce clashes between German and Allied forces in the Netherlands at the end of the war.

And he is hoping to find surviving descendants still living in the borough so identification can be confirmed through DNA testing.

Ernest William Cooper, son of Charles Edward and Helen Cooper, was 30 when he disappeared during a battle in the Dutch province of Gelderland in April 1945, two weeks before the liberation of the country was completed.

The marine is named on the Allied war dead memorial in the town of Kerkdriel and Ronny van Hoften, founder of the memorial, is certain that Mr Cooper, who is listed as "missing in action" in Royal Navy records, lies buried at a military cemetery in nearby Geldermalsen, in a grave marked "Unknown Royal Marine, known only to God".

During Operation Orange, which started on April 23 1945, Mr Cooper fought with the 30 Royal Marines of the 116th Infantry Brigade, who had the task of linking up with the Dutch army's Princess Irene Brigade in an attempt to liberate the Bommelerwaard region.

Mr van Hoften, 45, said: "It was a hard-fought battle, which continued until April 25, but was suddenly abandoned for humanitarian reasons. Soldiers were called back because food drops for civilians had been agreed with the Germans."

Using several sources, the Dutchman has established that a dead British marine was taken from Kerkdriel and buried in Geldermalsen with two German soldiers.

The 30 Royal Marines were the only unit to suffer casualties and, since the other dead were accounted

He is determined to find members of his family in the hope they may be willing to do a DNA test. He would then be able to ask the Commonwealth War Graves Commission to carry out formal identification of the body.

Mr van Hoften added: "It would mean a lot to me if he could be identified and get a proper grave with his name on it. I am trying to get this case to the CWGC, and if you find the family, it makes the case much stronger. So I am hoping that if there's anyone out there who might have known this man or his family, they get in touch with me."

Enfield Council has found a record of a marriage in Islington between an Ernest Cooper and a May Eveline Withers in 1933.

Anyone with information is urged to contact Mr Van Hoften at ronny-vanhoften@zonnet.nl, or alternatively send a letter to this newspaper.

Struggles: Ray Newell, from Enfield, is a playwright who has formed his own production company

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

WHEN a pair of misguided bank robbers can't get ski masks and are forced to use novelty Nigella Lawson and Gordon Ramsay face masks as disguises, they begin to take on the personalities of the celebrity TV chefs.

And so ensues hilarity and farce in Ray Newell's A Recipe for Disaster.

It's part of a comedy double bill with fellow playwright Steve Jordan's Pilgrim Shadow – the futuristic tale of two petty criminals who steal the spaceship of legendary treasure hunter Tim Shadow on a quest to the far reaches of the galaxy to find his hidden mythical loot – at the Dugdale Centre in Enfield Town for three nights starting tomorrow.

Both productions are from the Enfield Theatre Co-op, a collective aimed at nurturing the talents of up-and-coming playwrights and helping to get their work put on. It was formed three years ago by Newell, frustrated over the reluctance of established theatrical production companies to take a gamble and stage plays by unknown writers.

The 56-year-old has been writing for more than 30 years and has had many of his plays performed, including the The Raintons of Forty Hall, a turbulent tale about the Tudor family, who lived in the Enfield landmark, which attracted packed houses at the Dugdale Centre in 2012.

"I've had struggles myself to get plays put on because production companies are unwilling to give anything untried or untested a chance and tend to stick to well-known plays by established playwrights," said Newell, who lives in Phipps Hatch Lane, Enfield.

"I eventually got a production together myself and from that was born the Enfield Theatre Co-op, which supports and assists talented local playwrights to get their work shown."

RIVERSIDE PLACE - A small oasis situated on the edge of Enfield Island Village with front and back water views and enclosed rear gardens backing on to the River Lea.

The development forms part of a well-established residential area within walking distance of both shops and local community facilities, yet in a quiet picturesque area, where fishermen while away the hours and barges can be viewed on the canal.

Offering style and space to meet the aspirations of both young couples requiring starter homes and families with growing housing needs, the traditional style houses have a large flexible kitchen/dining/family room and separate living room. The kitchens feature contemporary gloss kitchen units with quartz worktops and integrated appliances. There is an en-Suite to the master bedroom and fitted wardrobes to bedrooms one and two. Allocated parking is also included.

Within 5 minutes' walk of Enfield Lock with frequent trains into Liverpool Street (24 minutes), the location also offers easy access to the A406, A10 and is within 3 miles of the M25. The lively shopping and entertainment in Enfield Town is less than a 10 minute drive away and the area is well serviced with 3 primary schools and the recently built secondary school, Oasis Academy.

Prices for these three bedroomed houses are currently £399,950 - £424,950.

Advertiser &
Press Group

CONDITIONS OF ACCEPTANCE FOR ALL ADVERTISEMENTS

Orders are accepted by the Publishers subject to the Standard Conditions agreed between the Newspaper Society and the Institute of Practitioners in Advertising. Save that:

1. Advertisements are accepted on the conditions that (a) descriptions relating to goods are accurate and in no way contravene the provisions of the Trade Descriptions Act 1968, and the Fair Trading Act 1973, and (b) the copy complies with the British Code of Advertising Practice. Advertisements offering credit or hire facilities must conform to the Consumer Credit (Advertisements) Regulations 1980.
2. 'Classified' Advertisers offering goods or service of a business, commercial or trade nature will, at the discretion of the Publishers, be deemed 'Trade Advertisers', and as such, must include their names in advertisements. A telephone number is an optional addition to these requirements and not an alternative.
3. To comply with the Business Advertisements (Disclosure) Order 1977, Trade Advertisers must make it clear that they are selling goods in the course of business either by content, format, size or place of the advertisement or by including words such as 'trade', 'dealer', 'agent', 'wholesaler', '(T)' etc. in the advertisement.
4. The Publishers accept no liability whatsoever for any loss or damage however caused arising out of:
 - (a) Any error, inaccuracy or omission in the printing or publishing of any advertisement;
 - (b) Any failure to publish an advertisement on the day / date or day / dates specified by the advertiser; or
 - (c) Any delay in forwarding or omission to forward replies to box numbers to the Advertiser.
5. The Publishers will endeavour to publish advertisements on the day / date or day / dates specified by the Advertiser but insertion days / dates cannot be guaranteed.
6. Where shrinkage of advertisement occurs for whatever reasons the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre. This will NOT apply to the full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
7. The Publishers reserve the right to reject an advertisement or to vary it in any way they deem fit, at any time before publication, whether or not the advertisement has already been accepted for publication.
8. Whilst every effort is made to minimise errors in advertisements, mistakes do sometimes occur. Advertisers or their agents should therefore check their advertisements and inform us of any errors immediately. Responsibility cannot be accepted for more than one incorrect insertion. Typographical or minor changes, which do not affect the value of the advertisement, do not qualify for republication or allowances.
9. All gross advertising rates (except classified lineage and semi-display) are subject to and include a 0.1% Advertising Standards Board of Finance surcharge, payable by the advertisers to help finance the self-regulatory control system administered by the Advertising Standards Authority.
10. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
11. Should the rate for advertisements be altered the price for remaining insertions shall be revised accordingly or the publishers shall have the right to cancel the unexpired portion of the order.
12. The placing of an advertisement order will be deemed an acceptance of these conditions.
13. Account facilities are granted at the discretion of the Company.
14. All accounts must be settled within the terms agreed by the Company and the Customer.
 - (1) Should an advertiser be in breach of the agreed terms, the publisher shall be entitled to levy a 10% surcharge on the value of the whole debt in respect of accounts with terms of less than 30 days, and any discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed.
 - (2) Regular monthly accounts that are in breach of the agreed terms will pay an interest rate of 6% above the current bank of England base rate for each month that the account is overdue and discounts or commissions that had been allowed will be reclaimed. Should Legal action be required the interest will be charged in accordance with the County Court Act 1984.
15. Where an advertiser instructs / appoints an advertising agent to act on their behalf, the advertiser will remain jointly and severally liable for payment in respect for an advertisement(s) should the appointed agent fail to pay. For the avoidance of doubt, the agent acts for the advertiser and not for the publisher with the agent being responsible for notifying the advertiser of this liability.
16. All queries must be notified, preferably in writing to the accounts department of the publisher within 7 days of the invoice date.
17. All digital services are maintained in partnership with the publishers' hosting service providers. Every effort is made to ensure the continuity of these services, but some occasional technical downtime beyond the publishers control may occur. The publisher and its associated companies shall be under no liability if the production and distribution of web services is delayed or prevented by any cause beyond the control of the publisher.
18. The Publisher may provide voucher copies for published advertisements in electronic form only subject to certain criteria. Further information is available on request.

WALKER IS BACK IN TRAINING AT SPURS

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

KYLE WALKER has handed Tottenham Hotspur a big boost by returning to training after a long spell on the sidelines.

The England international right-back picked up an abdominal injury in March, which initially forced him to miss the end of last season and saw him ruled out of the World Cup.

At this stage it was hoped that Walker would be able to avoid surgery, but the injury took longer than expected to heal and he did eventually undergo an operation in September.

However, Walker has now regained fitness and he began training again last week – and could even be involved in Sunday's Premier League match at Hull City.

"It's great to be back out there with the lads," he said. "I'm taking it one step at a time, doing things correctly and I'll see where I am. Everything is good at the moment. I'll be even happier when I'm back playing, but that's the final step.

"From my operation to my first day back in training was a 12-week programme, and I didn't miss a day's work.

"I thought to myself that I'm going to put my all into this, and hopefully it will stand me in good stead in terms of training and then working my way back into the team.

"I'm taking it slowly and hopefully it won't be too long before I'm back out there at White Hart Lane."

Meanwhile, defender Jan Vertonghen believes that Spurs need to hold clear-the-air talks after the current international break in a bid to get their faltering season back on track.

Tottenham won their opening two Premier League matches, but have only triumphed twice in nine league games

Back at last: Kyle Walker has returned to full training after eight months on the sidelines since then to leave them lying 12th in the table with just 14 points.

The last league match saw Spurs booed off the pitch after losing at home to Stoke City, and Vertonghen admits that their form has not been acceptable.

"It's not good enough, but we are working hard to get where we want to be," the Belgian international defender said. "We want to be in the top four. We are looking for our best form.

"At the start of the season there were seven or eight teams wanting to finish in the top four and some of those will be disappointed. I hope it's not us and I am confident we can finish in the top four.

"After this week we need to talk. Belief is still there. Hopefully we can be honest with each other and turn things around."

Paxton agrees a new deal with Skolars

JOHN PAXTON is set to spend a sixth season with the London Skolars after signing a new contract with the rugby league club.

The versatile Paxton is just one appearance short of his century for the club, and has scored 22 tries during that time.

Paxton has featured in a number of positions for the Skolars, but has most commonly been used as a strong defensive centre and a strike runner.

"Last season was a tough one for the boys and the club as a whole," he said. "But I'm looking forward to getting back out there and showing the fans what Skolars is all about.

"Rugby league is the greatest game, and there is nothing better than running out on to the field and giving your all with mates beside you, knowing they are doing the same."

Head coach Joe Mbu added: "John has consistently been one of the strongest players in the Skolars set-up over the past three years.

"Week to week he performs, and his ability to play wing, centre and full-back gives us some great options and freedom within the squad.

"Whichever position he plays he always gives his all, and to reach 100 games for the club will be a great and deserved achievement for him."

Meanwhile, the Skolars have confirmed that they will take on Super League giants Wigan Warriors in the tenth annual Capital Challenge in January.

This will be the second successive year that Wigan have featured in the match, which takes place at the Honourable Artillery Company ground in the city of London on January 16 (2pm).

Tickets cost £15 and are available now from www.skolarsrl.com

Rampant Borough hit Southend for six

HARINGEY BOROUGH crushed visiting Southend Manor 6-2 on Saturday to maintain their seven-point lead at the top of the Essex Senior League table.

Despite the emphatic nature of the final scoreline, Borough were forced to work hard for the win and it was not until Saleem Masri marked his debut by scoring their fourth that they finally took over control of the contest.

The hosts broke the deadlock after just four minutes as Anthony McDonald headed in the rebound after his initial shot had hit the bar.

However, Southend responded well and got back on level terms with a similar goal two minutes later, firing the loose ball into the net after a cross-shot had struck the post.

McDonald managed to restore Borough's lead in the 24th minute, and the hosts were able to maintain their narrow advantage through to the interval.

Rakim Richards looked to have put the hosts in control when sheer persistence enabled him to add a third four minutes into the second half, but Southend refused to lie down and Abiola Tanimowo broke clear to reduce their deficit soon after.

Borough finally began to step up the pace though, and Mastri restored their two-goal advantage with 20 minutes remaining.

This goal seemed to effectively end the visitors' resistance, and Joe O'Cearuill grabbed Borough's fifth on 80 minutes before a Deji Oguntona own goal rounded off the scoring in stoppage time.

Haringey Borough go to Takeley on Saturday (3pm), before visiting Hullbridge Sports on Tuesday (7.45pm).
